Dear Mr. Salton,

Thank you very much for your patience, co-operation, and advice in completing the 1961 Blue and Gold. Our ratings are dependent upon the high quality photography of you and your staff and we certainly appreciate your work.

Thank you again.

Foreword

As the intangible feeling of school spirit unfolds, energetic Grayites add a unique chapter to the history of James A. Gray High School. Advanced classes, the new "Blue Goose," an activity period, and a course in German provide new and diverting interests. Leading in work and play, the seniors spark the lively atmosphere that prevails in the student body.

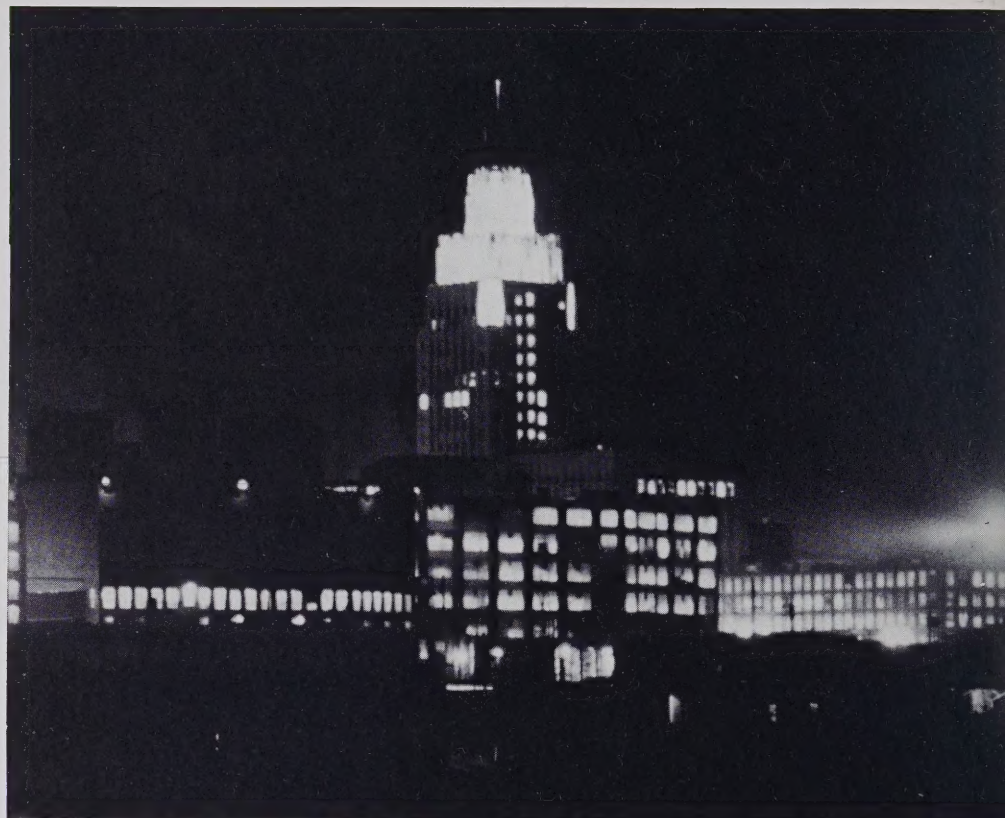

Representing the last group of students who attended when our school included an eighth grade, the class of 1961 becomes the first group to graduate from Gray as a strictly senior high. Hours and days of the past now fuse in memories of defeating Reynolds in football, being runner-up in the state semi-finals of the AAA Conference, cheering at pep rallies, struggling with homework, cramming for exams, attending assemblies, creating projects, scurrying to meetings, decorating for social events, dancing in the gym, and working together to serve all.

By the presentation of copy and pictures in this yearbook, we have attempted to depict the joys and woes of an entire year well-spent in learning, maturing, and socializing.

Winston-Salem, the "city of churches," is also known for its industries, as is depicted at the right. Tobacco and furniture factories, cotton mills, new superhighways, schools and hospitals, and the restoration of historic sites are provided for the advantage and enjoyment of the citizens and tourists of this All-America city. Many visitors assemble from all parts of the country to see Old Salem and to participate in the Easter Sunrise Service.

Many faces, some old, some new, filled the halls, August 31. Lively chatter and broad smiles could be seen everywhere. Now that Gray had become a three-year senior high, no puzzled freshmen appeared. Soon schedules were distributed, books assigned, and classes begun, with great enthusiasm among the students. As students discovered who their new teachers and classmates were to be, excitement reigned.

As elected representatives of the student body, the Student Council works diligently to promote a closer student-teacher relationship and to encourage students to strive for higher scholastic attainments. Good school spirit and co-operation are other objectives of the Council. At the beginning of the year, student officers busily registered new students and appointed "Big Sisters and Brothers" to help orient them.

Jubilant fans screaming for more points added zest for the 'Hounds to race down the field ahead of their opponents at football games. After a hard-fought victory over cross-town rival, Reynolds, the 'Hounds became Western AAA, District V, conference champions and gained the state finals. During the last four years the Grayhounds have defeated the Black Demons twice.

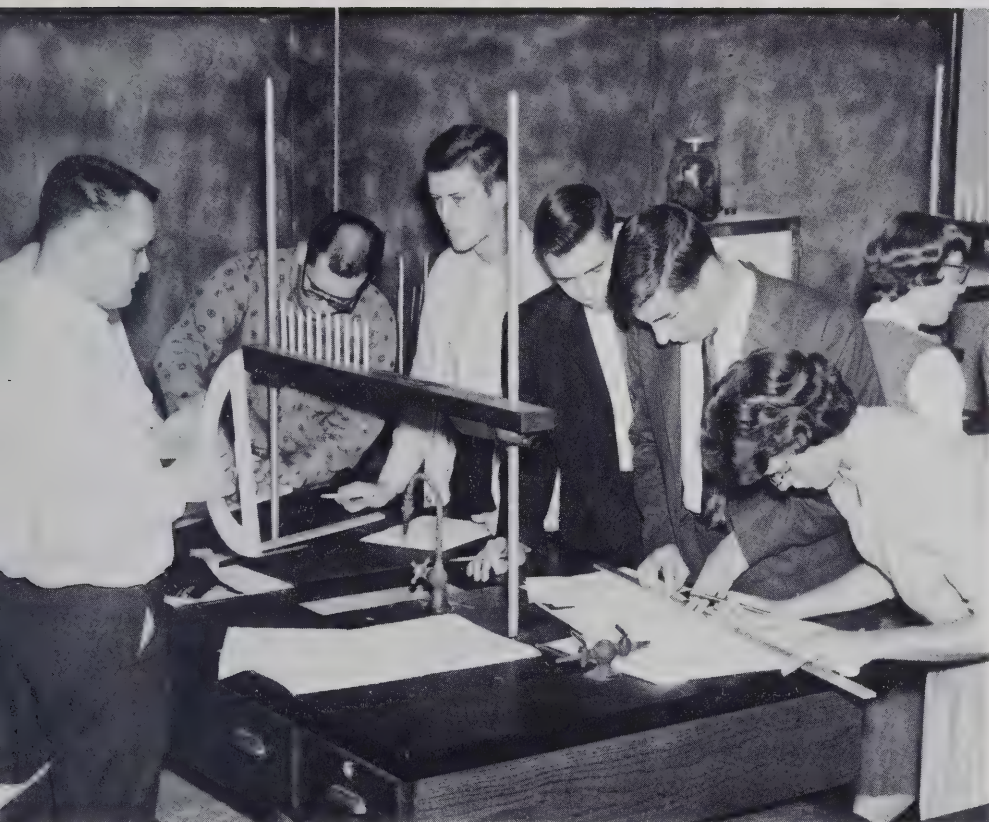

With heads bowed, we reverently began each morning with the Minute of Prayer. After hurried conversations and the dash to classes, we paused during these calm moments to ask for guidance in our studies and various activities. Strengthened by this new assurance, we quickly settled to another day and applied this added confidence in order to improve our skills.

Students congregate in the halls, at lockers, and in small groups throughout the campus to discuss the game of the previous night, the happenings of the day, and the events that lay ahead. Throughout the day, a warm atmosphere is evident among the student body. Smiles and understanding glances from one to another symbolize the close friendships that prevail at Gray.

We slowly acquire education and skills as we spend endless hours with special projects and term papers. Frantically we try to recall memory lines and important geometric formulas. Special after school lab. sessions in chemistry and physics were available. But as we complete our work, we view, with a greater knowledge and a shy pride, the accomplishments which we have obtained.

Whether it be assisting in the library, working on special committees, or preparing bulletin boards, service is rendered willingly by students. This helpfulness evidences the esprit de corps, for which our school is noted. Because of this co-operation, a close student-teacher relationship prevails, as we render unselfish service for the benefit of our school.

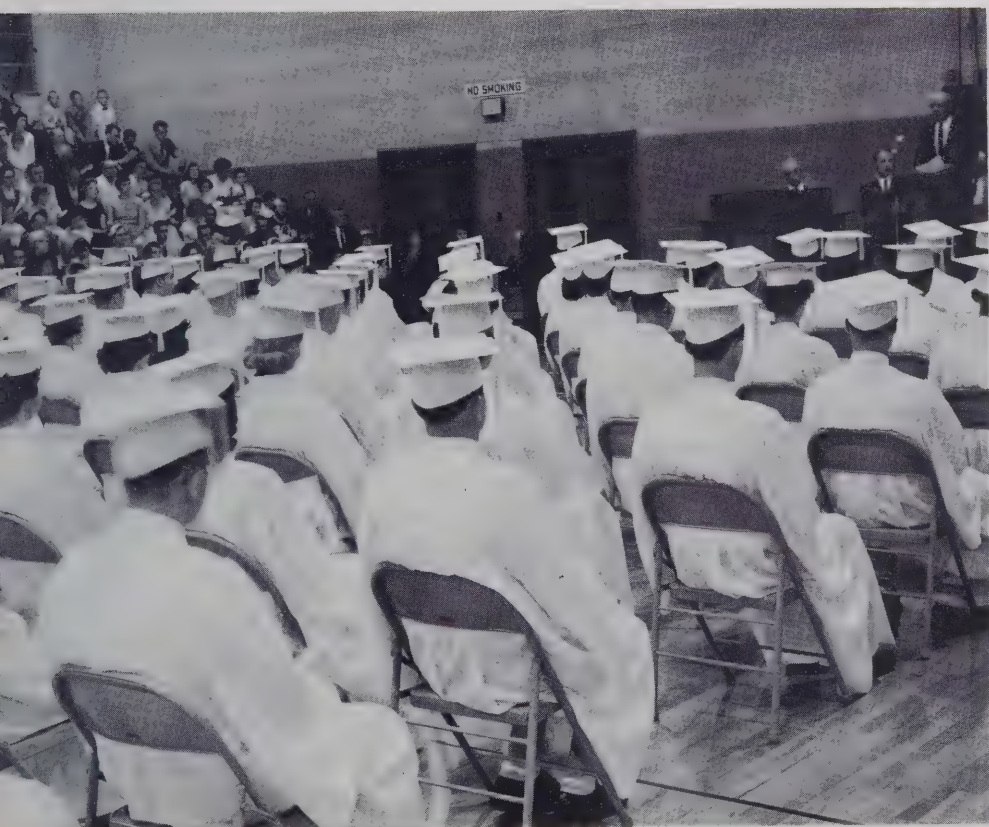

Many hours of study were spent memorizing poems and vocabularies, and preparing compositions for English. Special research work was assigned for lessons prepared outside class, and numerous nights were spent nodding over books and writing term papers. Class skits and dramatizations were presented as classes studied literature. Later, however, there came the realization that the hard work had not been in vain.

Colorful decorations, spirited combos, and flowing evening gowns were symbolic of dances held during the year. The juniors once again honored the seniors at the annual prom in April, and "Twirp Week" provided each girl with the opportunity to "pin" her favorite one for the dance. The Spring Prom, homecoming dances, and lively sock-hops were sparked with the swinging movements of each couple.

As the 3:05 bell rang, students rushed madly to their lockers for coats and needed books, then outside to waiting buses and cars of all shapes and descriptions. Many, however, stayed to practice ball and to attend various club meetings. Hurried good-bys and last-minute plans were made as Grayites started for home after another day of working and playing together.

As the seniors donned crisp, white caps and gowns and sat proudly together for the last time, their minds began to recall all the accomplishments, joys, and disappointments that they had shared for the past four years. Each remembered his first occupation of the cherished front seats in assembly, and the anticipation of the last—at Class Day. Then they proudly, yet sadly, accepted their diplomas.

Row one: Mr. Paul Pegram; Mrs. Norton Tennille; Mr. Clifford Perry, Chairman; Mr. M. C. Benton, Jr.; the Rev. William Crawford. Row two: Mr. William Knott, Mr. Phil Froelich.

The school board under the direction of Mr. Clifford Perry, chairman, has expanded the school program and now offers advanced classes in English, biology, history, and chemistry. Also a new trade school, opened for city and county students, offers training for boys interested in skilled professions.

Our school directors encourage us

The school system has been converted from the 8-4 to the 6-3-3 basis by the school administration. Students now have a thirty-minute activity period preceded by the first class. During this time numerous activities are scheduled; such as, guidance testing, assembly programs, club meetings, homeroom period, and student organization activities.

Row one: Mr. Marvin Ward, Ass't. Superintendent; Dr. A. Craig Phillips, Superintendent; Dr. William Self, Ass't. Superintendent. Row two: Mr. C. T. Leinbach, Comptroller; Mr. Ned Smith, Administrative Ass't.

Proud and delighted parents attended the annual Christmas concert, presented by the band and the chorus in the school auditorium, December 12. Under the direction of Mr. John Hall, the chorus sang carols depicting the story of Christ. The band, led by Mr. Maxie Beaver, presented popular and sacred Yuletide music.

The Rev. Clayton Persons, vice-president; Mrs. Reid Perryman, secretary; Mrs. G. E. Runge, treasurer; and Mrs. Harry Barnes, president, make preparations for family "Fun Night."

by providing increased facilities.

Linda Linville, student representative; Mrs. Harry Barnes, president; and Miss Ruth Holton, school secretary, discuss plans for future P.T.A. programs.

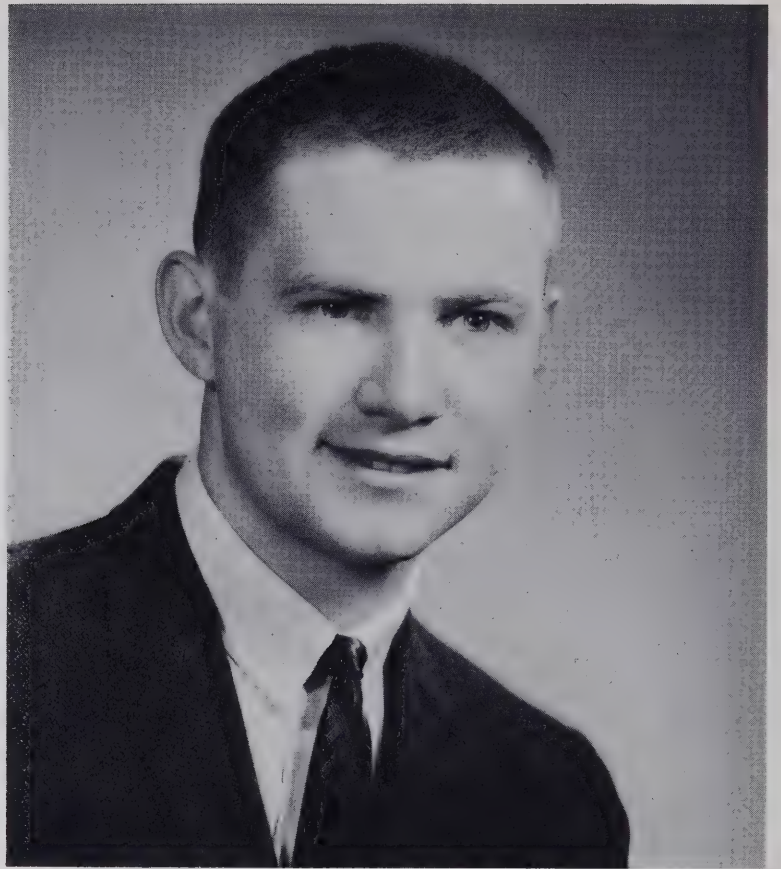

Each month the first Monday was set aside for interested parents to meet and discuss plans for the benefit of their children and students. P.T.A. officers, committee chairmen, and Linda Linville, student representative, worked closely together to increase membership. Dues were raised to one dollar per person in order to eliminate all money-making projects.

Dedication

During his past two years at Gray, Mr. William Reed has been willing to assist students and teachers in every way possible. His genial personality and warm sense of humor have stimulated his classes and proved invaluable in extra-curricular activities. Working tirelessly after school and serving as sponsor for the Junior Engineers' Club, he has proved himself a teacher and a friend.

Teaching or counseling, he has been an inspiration to all of us for better workmanship. To Mr. Reed, who has given his time to direct, encourage, and serve, we, the seniors, dedicate the 1961 Blue and Gold.

Approximately 700 students attended Gray, which, for the first time, was strictly a senior high. With the freshmen attending junior highs, the sophomores were once again the youngest. Since this was election year, a straw vote was sponsored by the journalism class, with Mr. Richard M. Nixon winning the election. All classes, however, joined to work on projects to promote more interest in school work and social gatherings.

CLASSES

Class of '61

Undecided whether to smile or cry, the senior class finds that the long awaited graduation day, June 2, is close at hand. Being upperclassmen has had its rewards; namely, occupying the cherished front seats in assemblies, attending the Senior Prom, dedicating the yearbook, presenting a class gift, and choosing senior marshals. With pride, the seniors selected their class motto, flower, colors, and mascot; elected superlatives; and strove to set a good example for the school.

Not to be forgotten are the hours spent studying Macbeth, the experience of learning U. S. history, and the thrills of memorable football games, such as the victory over Reynolds. As the Class Day Scribes relate the History and Last Will and Testament, memories will be recalled of the many events of the past four years; teachers, who have inspired us; and lasting friendships formed.

Senior class officers, Stanley Hamm, president; Lester Morris, treasurer; Robin Gentry, vice-president; and Pat O'Neal, secretary, lead combined homeroom meetings.

Class officers are assisted by sponsors in planning Class Day and Graduation.

Optimistic juniors attended the long-anticipated Junior-Senior Prom, April 21, in the Balinese Room of the Robert E. Lee Hotel. Chaperons for the Prom were the junior teachers and chief sponsor, Miss Lynn McBride.

Along with the Junior-Senior Prom, the receiving of class rings, becoming eligible to be senior marshals and cheerleaders, and achieving the title of upperclassmen were all tied together to make a package full of joy and excitement for this year's junior class.

Juniors order rings and plan proms.

Eligibility for consideration for membership in the three honor societies made juniors work with eagerness to achieve the highest grades possible. With the report of the arrival of the class rings, a symbol of achievement, cheers could be heard from every homeroom, February 28. Creeping, creeping! Yes, graduation is creeping up on the juniors. Only one more year until their package will be unwrapped, filled with memories of their junior year.

Mr. Tom Cash, Miss Lynn McBride, Mrs. Blevyn Wheeler, Mrs. Patricia Lyall, Mrs. Mary Hutchison, and Mr. James Thomas supervise junior class projects.

Sophomore Class

Underclassmen returned with renewed anticipation. Since the ninth grade now was in the junior high schools, sophomores again found themselves in the youngest group in school. Undisturbed by this situation, they worked with new courses such as biology and journalism, while required subjects offered new challenges. Fascinated, sophomores dissected frogs and wrote their first stories for publication. Many hours were spent gathering material and preparing models for science projects, which were displayed March 25-28, in the Wake Forest Science Fair.

New opportunities also awaited sophomores in additional extra-curricular activities, for now they were eligible for varsity sports; foreign language clubs; majorettes; Future Teachers of America; and one honor society, the Masque and Gavel. Sophomore girls worked to raise scholastic averages in hope of being named one of the four pages for the Junior-Senior Prom, held in May. Excited, but anxious, the sophomores worked eagerly on the National Educational Development Tests, March 11, but they had to wait for the results to be announced next fall.

Speeches given by nominees in the auditorium climaxed the campaigning for Student Government officers. Nominations were made through the homerooms. New leaders found that much time was required for special projects and board meetings.

Superintendents

Sponsoring Student Day, held February 10, was one of the main features of the Student Council. Qualified students replaced teachers and led classes for the day. Dickie Newsome, student body president, acted as principal for the day. Other students holding top jobs were Robin Gentry, guidance counselor; Leroy Kimmons, guidance director; Robert Weisner, athletic director; Dawn Chapel, school secretary; and Jenny Linville, registrar. Other projects were Twirp Week, the homecoming bonfire and dance, and the annual clean-up campaign. School officers, superintendents, and homeroom presidents and board members composed the Student Council, sponsored by Mr. E. E. Todd.

Johnson, K. Bovender, S. Sturges, S. Hoover. Row five: J. Wein-garth, A. Bodford, L. Segraves, T. Fix. Row six: S. Hamm, W. Simmons, R. Leonard, O. Shuler.

Highlight of the year for superintendents was the receiving of Student Council pins in March. Twenty-two department superintendents and their assistants, members of the student council, called separate meetings of homeroom representatives and discussed problems or new ideas concerning their departments. Meeting the first Friday of each month, the Traffic Department discussed means of keeping hall traffic flowing smoothly and quietly. Illness in the student body was reported to the Public Relations Department, members of which sent cards or flowers to the ill students or faculty members. Members of the Personal Relations Department, through personal contact, attempted to influence students to obey school rules and to keep a good student-faculty relationship. On Monday mornings various departments gave to the student board reports about their work. Almost twenty percent of the student board is composed of superintendents.

 S. McGee.

Working together to create interest and participation in all school activities, the board members and homeroom presidents met every Monday morning, under the direction of their new sponsor, Mr. E. E. Todd.

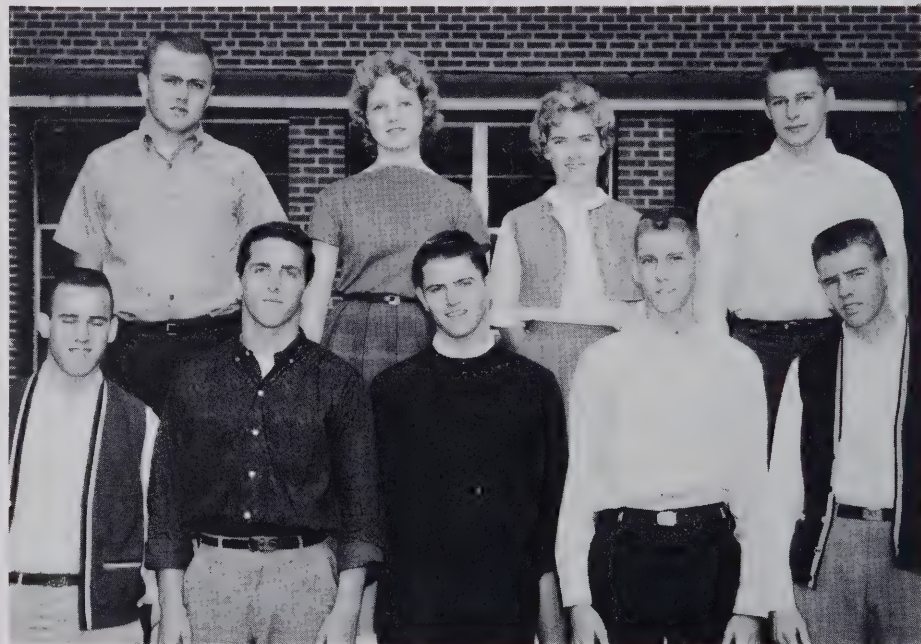

Attending all board meetings, taking accurate notes, and presenting the correct information to the homerooms are the main responsibilities of the board representative. Because he must take suggestions and appeals of the students back to the board meeting for discussion, he is the direct link between the student organization and the student body.

One of the projects sponsored by the student organization was the Christmas dance, held December 17, in the Boys' Gym. Seasonal decorations of snowflakes and a sleigh were used.

Other projects were Student Day, the football and basketball homecoming festivities, and the annual Spring Prom. In order to conduct better meetings, the homeroom presidents attended all board meetings. Reading the homeroom bulletin to the class, appointing committees, and thoroughly discussing all points presented were some of their many duties.

Striving to get copy, pictures, and identifications to the publisher by February 10, journalism students had a time of feverish excitement after Christmas.

During the summer, the co-editors were busy dreaming up new ideas and drawing them. After school started, picture making, the taking of identifications, and copy writing began in order to meet the deadline. Now that the yearbook is published, the journalism students view their work with a sense of pride that comes only from a job completed to the best of their abilities.

Not daunted by the difficulties which delayed printing a regular paper until the second semester, the hard-working staff of the Gray Light remedied this condition by printing special editions on mimeographed paper. During the second semester, for the first time, the Gray Light was published by a commercial firm.

Because of many projects, staff members never had an idle moment. Activities varied from selling football programs to sponsoring a straw ballot and publicizing school affairs. The purpose of the Gray Light is to keep students and community well-informed on the school activities.

Future teachers sponsor annual Faculty Appreciation Day and aid with a student-assistance program.

Teacher Appreciation Day, April 14, was the main highlight of the year for the F.T.A. In order to be eligible for membership, one must be interested in going to college or in becoming a teacher, have an "E" on deportment, and maintain a "C" subject average. Sharing new ideas about the teaching profession, the F.T.A., under the guidance of Miss Lynn McBride, held monthly meetings.

Junior Y-Teens help as Senior Y-Teens

At the Christmas Toy Shop, Junior Y-Teens packaged toys for unfortunate children, December 12. Another seasonal feature was Christmas caroling. After the singing, the group enjoyed hot cocoa at the home of Mrs. Virginia Keys, sponsor. Other timely events were a swimming and Valentine party. Among the beneficial activities of the group were participating in an early spring clean-up campaign and making favors for the Home for the Aged, March 17. In order to raise money for activities, members sold candy to the student body. Club members were permitted use of the Y.W.C.A. for socials, and all facilities needed were provided by the association. Becoming citizens by helping in community and school life is the goal of Junior Y-Teens.

support community projects.

Senior Y-Teens awaited the coming of spring and the main event, a trip to New York City! Members who desired visited the city for a week.

Among other memorable events were the bake sale, held at the Colonial Store, November 18, and assistance at the stand during the basketball games. Members of the city Y-Teens enjoyed participation in the "hanging of the green," December 21. Collection of potato chip bags, frozen pie packages, and bottle caps in order to accumulate community club award points was another project, sponsored by a local radio station, which offered a cash prize to the group with the most points. ## Chorus Excitement prevailed as the mixed chorus rehearsed for their first performance a program entitled "History of Music," October 21.

This year much emphasis was placed on choral arrangements and lighting effects. The chorus practiced difficult exercises, learned the vibrant rhythm of songs, and set their goal for the All-State Chorus. Diligent work was manifest in the exceptional harmonizing of the singing. Contests involving musical ability highlighted spring activities, with real competition beginning February 10, at the State Choral Contest. To conclude the year, a concert was presented to the school.

Girls' Athletic Association offers intramural sports participation.

After inducting new members into the Girls' Athletic Association in the spring, the girls visited Wake Forest College to observe its physical ed. program.

Requisites for G. A. A. induction are 50 points for playing in a minimum of two sports. "A girl for every sport, a sport for every girl," is the motto. Making poms-poms for the homecoming games was among the various services of the G. A. A.'s.

Jr. Engineers acquire knowledge of science through educational trips.

Geology, atoms, and achievements in the field of medical science were among the subjects discussed when the Junior Engineers' Club, sponsored by Mr. William Reed, met monthly and probed into the world of science and engineering.

Genuine interest in any field of the scientific world was the only requirement for membership. The group prepared special projects in order to fulfill the purpose of the organization: to gain a better understanding of the scientific world.

Heading the band this year was a high-stepping strutter, Gary Williams. Band officers were Charles Pace, president; Pattie Johnsen, secretary and treasurer; and Ann Knott and Bonniesue Myers, librarians.

Band members often played for elementary, junior high, and senior high schools in the city. The band added gaiety and spirit to pep rallies and football games, and entertainment at P.T.A. meetings.

Spirit boosters supply during pep rallies

"Go; Fight; Win!" yelled the cheerleaders under the leadership of Robin Gentry, chief. Getting off to an early start by practicing last summer, the squad showed precision and pep in their routines.

Urging the 'Hounds to AAA Championship, decorating goal posts before games, and attending the football banquet were all gay experiences enjoyed under the guidance of their sponsors, Mrs. Eloise Curlee and Mrs. Kitty Bartholomew.

Sparkling their season this year, a banquet for majorettes to honor their sponsors and parents was held, November 19.

Long evenings of practice by the majorettes went into preparations for spectacular shows during football season. Twirling of fire batons and enthusiastic strutting at pep meetings, in parades, and at football games added spice and color to many school events.

Color guards are Mary Beth Fox, Dorothy Willard, Beth Dunfee, Nancy Wright, and Dorothy Chappell.

With the well-rounded sports program at Gray, each student has the opportunity to participate in numerous athletics. Autumn Friday nights found students cheering the Grayhounds on to victory. In the afternoons girls provided exciting speedball games. During the winter months, crowds met in the gymnasium for basketball but turned to the outdoors again as track meets, tennis matches, softball, and baseball announced the arrival of spring.

Physical education classes, with intramural games in every sport, supplied much excitement. During the fall months, a few weeks were devoted to the improving of skills; such as, shooting basketball goals, playing shuffleboard and ping-pong, climbing ropes, and doing push-ups.

Hanes, Sept. 2: Routing Hanes, 20-0, in the opener of the 1960 grid season, the 'Hounds showed themselves a vastly improved team. With two touchdowns, Jerry Huneycutt paced the offense, while Bill Crawley dominated the defense.

Reynolds, Sept. 16: Inspired play was evident as the Gray eleven edged the Black Demons, 14-13. The score having been tied, 7-7, in the second quarter because of a Gray fumble, the 'Hounds rushed back, going 65 yards to score the winning T.D.

Reidsville, Sept. 23: In their first 3-A District 5 conference game, favored Gray tied Reidsville, 7-7, in a let-down from the preceding week's victory over Reynolds. Robert Steelman plunged over from the one-yard line to tally Gray's lone score.

Bessemer, Nov. 11: With their 49-7 sweep over Bessemer, Gray's power-packed wing-T captured the conference crown. Dominating the scoring, statistics, and all-around play, the 'Hounds used the "home run" punch to score.

Brevard, Nov. 23: About 3,500 fans watched as Gray was downed by unbeaten Brevard, 7-0, in the Western 3-A championship tilt. John Reeves and Robert Weisner were defensive standouts for the 'Hounds, who ended play with a 9-2-1 record.

Varsity basketball has enthusiastic

Shrill blasting of the referee's whistle in the North Davidson opener, December 5, was evidence that the cage season was once again in session.

Anchored by three seniors on the starting five, the 'Hound quint had its difficulties in the initial game, losing to the North Davidson Black Knights, 56-45. Unstablens continued as the 'Hound five suffered losses in its first four games of the season. Other losses were to Reynolds, Salisbury, and Hanes.

Alvino Patterson

Alvino Patterson, back-court ace returning to his first-string position, was elected captain of the varsity basketball five. Led by the defense-breaking assault of Wimpy Bovender, the Gray cagers upended the Salisbury Yellow Jackets, 53-45, January 10. The outside shooting of high-jumping Olon Shuler and Harold Stephens, forward and guard, respectively, assisted the 'Hound quintet in winning games.

After losing the first four games, the 'Hounds, with many rigid hours of holiday practice, began a three-game series of wins by defeating the High Point quint, 55-53, January 3. Jerry Huneycutt's last minute jump shot gave the Gray five their first victory.

With renewed strength and strategy, the high-jumping cagers met Lexington, January 6. Paced by Olon Shuler and Harold Stephens, the Gray quintet cracked a zone defense and shaded its rival, 48-44.

Baseball

With the clash of baseballs and gloves, the varsity team began practice February 1, with 35 players. Under the guidance of ten returning lettermen, Captain Jerry Sims, and Coach Phillip Morris, the Grayhounds met Morehead, Page, Bessemer, Mt. Airy, and Reidsville.

A great loss to the team was the graduation of Terry Foust, who last year pitched a 4-2 victory over Dallas to win Gray the Western Class 3-A championship. However, the 'Hounds overcame this drawback and struck back into the conference games, which came to a dead end because of a recent resolution passed by the State High School Athletic Association eliminating state play-offs.

Track

In their sixth year of competition, the cinder men of Gray carried the school's banner by sprinting the 100 and 220-yard dashes, running the 440 and 880-yard, the mile, and the mile-relay runs; hopping over high and low hurdles; leaping in broad jumps; diving over high-jump poles; and hurling discusses and shot-puts.

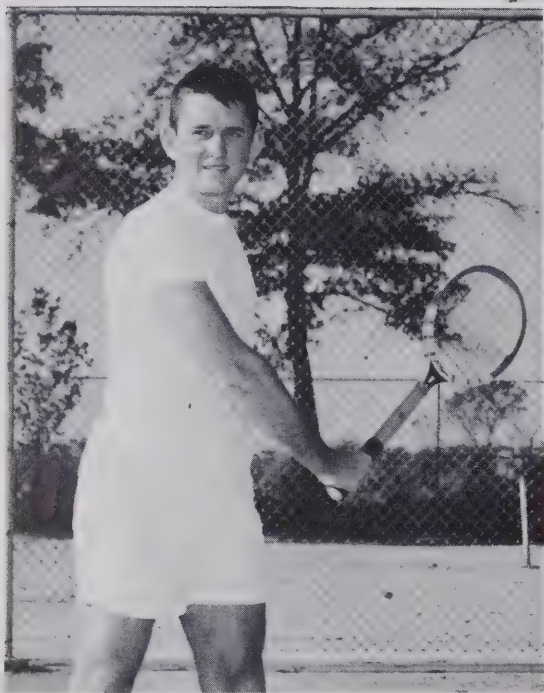

These track participants practiced on an individual basis. Each boy worked out alone or with fellow participants until his turn came for instruction from Coach Homer Thompson. This year's road runners, ten lettermen and ten non-lettermen, met stiff competition on their two-year-old track.

During the past year, more students than ever before brought honor and esteem to Gray. Practically every department was represented by excellence. Being scholarship finalists, outstanding athletes, poets, and good citizenship representatives were a few of these honors of which we are proud. On Student Day, February 10, the faculty permitted students to teach their classes. Approximately 128 students participated. After-school hours were divided among play rehearsals, practice for the talent show, and extra drills on sports techniques which enabled us to have winning teams.

queens, selected by the student half-time ceremonies.

Lester Morris crowns Robin Gentry football homecoming queen.

Harold Whitt, Bill Byrd, Don McGee, William Sparks, Ted Foy, George Mitchell, Richard Chucci, and Gary Taylor are members of the talent show combo.

Mary Agnew, Johnnie Roseboro, Mrs. Dollie Starkoy, Samuel Hilton, and Willie Baskins prepare appetizing lunches.

Standing over 'midst the forest,
'Neath the oak tree's shade;
We salute you, Alma Mater,
Proud and unafraid.
